The index, compiled up by Boersen AG, includes EDP Renewables thanks to its contribution to mitigating climate change and promotion of renewable energies in emerging markets

Madrid, 7 September 2020: EDP Renewables (EDPR), a global leader in the renewable energy sector and one of the world's largest wind energy producers, has been listed on the prestigious Global Challenges index (GCX) as one of the main drivers behind sustainability through its products and services around the world.

The index is compiled by Boersen AG, the main stock exchange operator in Germany, and contains 50 securities from globally active companies with a specific focus on sustainability. The inclusion of EDPR marks the recognition of the company's contribution to mitigating climate change and its efforts to support the transition towards a more sustainable electricity system, while also promoting the development of renewable energies in emerging markets. It also positions us as one of the best listed companies, capable not only of generating value for our investors, but of doing so in a sustainable way that supports a more environmentally-friendly economy."*

The company's efforts have been acknowledged through its inclusion in various sustainability and environmental indices, including FTSE4Good, Dow Jones Sustainability, CDP and Forum Ethibel, and in rankings such as Top Employer and Bloomberg Gender Equality, among others.
